6	IV.	ARGUMENT	7
7	A.	The Applicable Pleading Standard	8
8	B.	Plaintiff's Claims Are Legally Sufficient	9
9	1.	Plaintiff's Claim for Violations of Nevada Consumer Fraud Law is Legally Sufficient	9
10	2.	Plaintiff's Claim for Unjust Enrichment is also Legally Sufficient	11
11	3.	Plaintiff Can Legally Plead the Violation of the Consumer Protection Laws of Defendants' Home States as well as Nevada to Establish the Absence of any True Conflict of Law and the Manageability of the Nationwide Class	12
12	4.	Fraud Was Pled with Particularity Under the Standards Set Forth in Nev. R. Civ. P. 9(b)	14
13	5.	Even if Fraud Was Not Pled With Sufficient Particularity as to Each Defendant, Nevada Has Adopted The Relaxed Pleading Requirements the Federal Courts Utilize, Where, as Here, the Facts Necessary To Plead Fraud with Particularity Are Within The Defendants' Knowledge or Possession	16

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiffs allege that Defendants have cheated United States consumers and Defendants' 3 competitors alike by lying about the origin of their "Ol' Roy" brand pet food products as "MADE IN 4 THE U.S.A." The laws of the United States, Nevada, and the other states uniformly do not allow 5 businesses to cheat to compete for market share by lying about the origin of the sellers' product. 6 Mislabeling as to product origin violates N.R.S. §598.0915 and the consumer protection statutes of 7 every other state.¹

8 The motion for dismiss by Defendant Menu Foods, Inc. ("Menu Foods") is largely duplicative 9 of the motion to dismiss previously filed by Defendant Del Monte. Defendant Menu Foods, Inc.'s 10 motion first attacks the sufficiency of the claim for violation of Nevada's consumer fraud laws (N.R.S. 11 §598.0915). That argument is entitled to short shrift because this action is based upon the Defendants' 12 scheme to distribute products as "Made in the USA", when in fact this designation was false. 13 Defendants have admitted that components of the products were made in China. This conduct is a per 14 se violation of N.R.S § 598.0915.

15 Menu Foods objects to Plaintiff's reference to federal law regarding the issue of what is "Made 16 in the USA." Such an argument is specious as the Complaint referred to federal law, not to create a 17 private right of action, but rather to determine whether a product can be truthfully labelled "Made in 18 the USA." Nevada law then confers a private right of action for products which are improperly 19 designated. The reference to federal law in the Complaint, and in particular, the rules established by 20 the Federal Trade Commission and by 62 Fed. Reg. 63756, was to allege the applicable standard for 21 when a product can be called "Made in USA." The product must be "all or virtually all" made in 22 the U.S. Under this standard, "All or virtually all" means that "all significant parts and 23 processing that go into the product must be of U.S. origin. That is, the product should contain

26 ¹ Defendants are cheating consumers who think they are buying a product made in America and 27 also cheating their competitors who sell pet food that actually is made in America. This deceptive and 28 unfair conduct is like the conduct condemned by the California Supreme Court in Stop Youth Addiction v. Lucky Stores Inc., 17 Cal.4th 553, 579, 950 P.2d 1086, 1103 (1998) ("Merchants who violate the law by selling tobacco products to minors obtain a competitive advantage over their law-abiding counterparts who do not share in the profits from such illegal sales.")

1 no — or negligible — foreign content.”² Here, Defendant callously admits that the labels for the 2 products lied because the key manufactured component of Wheat Gluten was wholly Made in China,
 3 but argues that the designation was not deceptive because the product was bagged in the United States.
 4 Bagging a product in the United States, when the product is composed of foreign manufactured
 5 components or materials, does not equal “Made in the USA”. 62 Fed. Reg. at 63769-70. In light of 6 this admission that a significant component was manufactured in China, Defendant’s unsupported
 7 argument that the “Made in USA” designation on their product was legal and not deceptive is 8 incorrect. 62 Fed. Reg. at 63768 and 63764. Nevertheless, this is a factual question for trial, not an 9 question that can be resolved through a Rule 12 motion.

10 Further, this conduct violates federal standards and the laws of the 49 other states. As a result,
 11 a nationwide class is appropriate. To the extent that this Court later determines, after a conflict of 12 laws analysis, that Nevada law cannot be applied to the claims of certain members of the Class, the 13 litigation would still be manageable because the conduct violates the laws of the states where 14 Defendants are headquartered and the laws of all other states. In any event, this class manageability 15 issue should not be decided now in a Rule 12 context.

16 Menu Foods also argues that the unjust enrichment claim is legally insufficient because 17 factually no benefit was retained. This argument is contrary to the allegations of the Complaint (¶46 18 and ¶47), and is therefore improper on a motion to dismiss. Moreover, Menu Food’s argument relies 19 exclusively on a recall notice expressly limited to specified contaminated lots, and did not provide for 20 any remedy as to the Defendants’ falsely labeled products that were not recalled. Defendants have 21 clearly retained benefits from their unlawful conduct as to their mislabeled products that were not 22 recalled.

23 Finally, the motion to dismiss by Menu Foods argues that Plaintiff has not sufficiently pled the 24 alleged fraud as to the geographic origin of the “Ol’ Roy” brand pet food products. Again, this 25 argument is belied by the allegations of the Complaint. At paragraph 39 of the Complaint, Plaintiff
 26 specifically pleads the how, when and where of the alleged fraud perpetrated on the Plaintiff and other

28

2 Emphasis added and internal citations omitted unless otherwise indicated

1 consumers. The details of how each Defendant participated in the fraudulent scheme is a matter within 2 the exclusive knowledge of the Defendants and is a matter for discovery. These allegations of fraud
3 in this case clearly suffice under the controlling Nevada Supreme Court decision in Rocker v. KPMG
4 148 P. 3d 703, 704, 122 Nev. Adv. Rep. 101 (2006).

5 At bottom, the motion by Menu Foods simply improperly disputes the factual allegations of 6 the Complaint, which is not the role of a Rule 12 motion. Before the merits of factual disputes in this 7 case can be decided, Plaintiff must be permitted discovery and an opportunity to present evidence to 8 establish the allegations of the complaint. For the reasons set forth hereinbelow, and as argued in 9 response to the Del Monte motion to dismiss, Plaintiff respectfully requests that this Court deny 10 Defendant Menu Food's motion to dismiss.

12 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

13 The instant Class Action Complaint involves a scheme among the Defendants through which 14 "Ol' Roy" brand pet food products were intentionally mislabeled and sold to consumers as "Made in 15 USA," when in fact components of the "Ol' Roy" brand pet food products were made and/or 16 manufactured in China. Specifically, the wheat was processed in China into wheat gluten, and as a
17 result, Defendants were not entitled to label these products as "Made in the U.S.A." as Defendants well 18 know. This action is brought on behalf of all consumers throughout the United States who purchased 19 "Ol' Roy" brand pet food products which falsely represent on the product label to have been "Made 20 in USA" during the applicable Class Period. (Complaint at ¶ 1).

21 Central to the Defendants' marketing of certain of their "Ol' Roy" products is the 22 representation and designation that such products were and are "Made in USA." Defendants package 23 these products with the designation on the label or packaging, in capital and bold lettering, that the 24 products were "MADE IN USA." (Complaint at ¶ 2).

25 Studies show that the "MADE IN USA" is a substantial factor in consumer purchasing
26 decisions. More importantly here, in the context of food products, the designation that the products
27 were "Made in USA" becomes a central and primary consumer concern because of fears about 28 contaminants and the differences in health and safety procedures in foreign countries. (Complaint at 1 ¶ 2).

2 All of the pet food products under the brand name “Ol’ Roy” sold to consumers in Nevada and 3 nationwide were mislabeled in the same way. On each package of “Ol’ Roy” pet food, the label
 4 uniformly represents that the product was “MADE IN USA” in capital letters. (Complaint at ¶ 4).
 5 Contrary to this representation, “Ol’ Roy” brand pet foods were not “Made in USA” as falsely
 6 designated, but instead, were manufactured either in whole or in part, in China. On or after March 16, 7 2007, as a result of the investigation into these products, Defendants disclosed for the first time that 8 the “Ol’ Roy” brand pet food products contained ingredients manufactured in China. (Complaint at 9 ¶ 6).

10 Consumers and users of these products are particularly vulnerable to these deceptive and 11 fraudulent practices. Defendants were in the exclusive possession of information regarding the country 12 of origin for “Ol’ Roy” brand pet food products. The “Made in USA” labeling as to designation of 13 origin is a material factor in many people’s purchasing decisions, as they believe they are buying truly
 14 American products and supporting American companies and American jobs. Consumers generally 15 believe that “Made in USA” products are higher quality products than those of other countries which 16 is especially true with regard to food products. Unaware of the falsity of the Defendants’ country-of-17 origin claims, Plaintiff and the other members of the Class all purchased “Ol’ Roy” brand pet food
 18 products that had been fraudulently marketed and mislabeled by Defendants. State and federal laws
 19 uniformly outlaw this mislabeling to protect consumers and competitors alike from this type of false
 20 advertising and predatory conduct. Defendants’ deception of consumers is ongoing and will victimize 21 consumers every day until the practice is deterred by judicial intervention. (Complaint at ¶ 11).

22 The country-of-origin designation is especially important and material in the context of food
 23 products because of oversight one expects by the Food and Drug Administration and local health
 24 agencies over food products made in the United States. For example, food products made in foreign 25 countries can be grown or made using banned pesticides and/or chemicals, which one would not expect 26 to find in “Made in USA” labeled food products. Consumers who purchase food products labeled 27 “Made in USA” reasonably believe that they are purchasing products which have been grown and 28 made in accordance with state and federal regulations. These same regulations are not present in 1 foreign countries where unsafe and deleterious chemicals may be used without regulatory oversight.

 2 (Complaint at ¶ 12). The fact that Defendant's product, parts of which were manufactured in China,
 3 was later bagged in the United States does not entitle the Defendant to falsely represent the designation
 4 of origin of all the products components, without limitation, as "Made in USA." 62 Fed. Reg. 63756,
 5 63768 (Dec. 2, 1997). Defendant's motion cites to no authority which would permit this designation,
 6 and indeed, the uniform federal standard for the "Made in USA" designation is to the contrary.³
 7 (Complaint at ¶8). This is especially true in the context of food products where the failure of Chinese 8 manufacturing and safety are manifest.

9 The Plaintiff Margaret Picus is a resident of Nevada, who purchased her "Ol' Roy" brand pet 10 food products on multiple occasions at a Wal-Mart retail store located in Henderson, Nevada during 11 the Class Period. The Plaintiff purchased "Ol' Roy" brand pet food products as a consumer for the 12 household purpose of feeding the product to her pet during the Class Period. (Complaint at ¶ 13).
 13 Defendant concealed the true facts regarding the geographic origin of the "Ol Roy" brand pet food
 14 products, and if Plaintiff and the other members of the Class had known of the facts which Defendants
 15 and each of them failed to disclose, they would never have purchased the Ol' Roy brand pet food
 16 products as they did. (Complaint at ¶¶ 39-41). When the Plaintiff learned of the Defendants'
 17 fraudulent conduct she filed the instant lawsuit on behalf of herself and all similarly situated
 18 consumers nationwide who purchased fraudulently labeled Ol' Roy pet food products at Wal-Marts 19 prior to March 16, 2007. (Complaint at ¶ 21). The Complaint alleges three causes of action based 20 upon the fraudulent designation of Ol' Roy products as "Made in the USA": (1) violations of Nevada's 21 consumer fraud laws, particularly N.R.S. Sections 41.600 and 598.0915, (2) unjust enrichment, and 22 (3) common law fraud and concealment.

26 ³ Under federal requirements, for a product to be called "Made in USA," the product must be "all or 27 virtually all" made in the U.S." Under this standard, "All or virtually all" means that "all significant 28 parts and processing that go into the product must be of U.S. origin. That is, the product should contain no — or negligible — foreign content." See Federal Trade Commission Statement
 "Complying with the Made In the USA Standard." Because Defendant's product does not meet this standard, Defendant attacks this federal standard without authority.

1 III. LEGAL BACKGROUND FOR PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS

2 Until the 1930s, the rule of caveat emptor prevailed in the marketplace. Deceived consumers
 3 had no claim at common law. Consumers were left to the devices of unscrupulous sellers under the 4 doctrine of caveat emptor.

5 Then in 1938, Congress amended the Federal Trade Commission Act ("FTC Act"), and in 6 particular, Section 5. "Of particular importance was a 1938 amendment to the act, which expanded
 7 the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) preexisting jurisdiction over "unfair methods of competition"
 8 to include "unfair or deceptive acts or practices." (52 Stat. 111 (1938), amending 15 U.S.C. § 5.)" Bank
 9 of the West v. Superior Court, 833 P.2d 545, 551; 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1264 (1992). This amendment,
 10 which became a model for state regulatory statutes, gave the FTC concurrent jurisdiction over 11 unfair business practices that harmed the public in order to bring confidence and honesty back 12 to the marketplace." Id.

13 Despite the broad scope and reach of the FTC Act, Section 5 was not privately actionable.
 14 Therefore, in order to give consumers a private right of action, Congress and the FTC encouraged the 15 states to enact their own similar statutes to protect consumers. Every state and the District of 16 Columbia have enacted some law or combination of laws prohibiting acts of unfair competition. The 17 primary purpose of these statutes was to "extend to the entire consuming public the protection
 18 once afforded only to business competitors." Barquis v. Merchs. Collection Assn., 496 P.2d 817, 19 828; 7 Cal. 3d 94, 109 (1972). These state consumer protection laws and the FTC Act have 20 concurrent jurisdiction over unfair and deceptive business practices. Consumer Justice Center v.
 21 Olympian Labs, 99 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1058-61 (2002); Colligan v. Activities Club of New York, 442
 22 F.2d 686, 693 (2nd Cir. 1971) ("adequate private remedies for consumer protection, which to date have 23 been left almost exclusively to the states, are readily at hand."). Therefore, the fact that a practice
 24 violates federal law does not mean that the same practice cannot be challenged under state law.
 25 Instead, state courts look to the "parallel" authority and decisions of the FTC to determine 26 whether a practice is deceptive or unfair under the state laws. Cel-Tech Communications v. L.A.
 27 Cellular Tel. Co., 973 P.2d 527, 543; 20 Cal. 4th 163, 185 (1999).

28 The concurrent jurisdiction of state and federal law over deceptive trade practices is

1 further evidenced by Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 598.0923 which defines “deceptive trade practices”
 2 as including conduct that “violates a state or federal statute or regulation relating to the sale or 3 lease of goods or services.” See George v. Morton, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15980 at * 32 (D. Nev.
 4 March 1, 2007) (denying motion to dismiss claim under Nevada Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices
 5 Act alleging violation of state and federal regulations in condominium sales).

6 There are four basic types of state consumer protection statutes. Some states, like California,
 7 Florida and Hawaii, enacted “Little FTC Acts” which were patterned after Section 5 of the FTC Act
 8 by generally prohibiting deceptive and unfair business practices. Other states, like Georgia, Tennessee
 9 and Pennsylvania, enacted statutes which prohibited specific listed practices and generally prohibited
 10 any act that is deceptive or unfair to the consumer. Ohio, Kansas and Utah patterned their consumer
 11 protection laws after the Uniform Consumer Sales Practices Act. Finally, Nevada, and twelve other 12 states, including Delaware, Illinois and Oregon, enacted a version of the Uniform Deceptive Trade
 13 Practices Act which provides for consumer protection by prohibiting specific “deceptive trade 14 practices.” Relevant to this case, one of these expressly prohibited practices is the use of 15 “deceptive representations or designations of geographic origin.” Importantly, mislabeling is 16 actionable under all four types of consumer protection laws.

17 This background is important to the consideration of this case because the history of the 18 enactments illustrates that federal standards are useful in determining whether the state statutes are 19 violated and because our system relies on private state enforcement alongside federal agency
 20 enforcement. Thus, not only is the conduct in this case properly challenged under state law, state law
 21 enforcement is the only source of authority for consumers to seek redress.⁴

22

23 IV. ARGUMENT

24 Menu Foods argues that the complaint should be dismissed because (i) Plaintiff has no private 25 right of action under the Federal Trade Commission Act, (ii) Count I of the Complaint fails to state

26

27 ⁴ In Mangini v. RJ Reynolds Tobacco, 875 P.2d 73, 78; 7 Cal. 4th 1057, 1065 (1994) the FTC is 28 quoted by the California Supreme Court to the effect that FTC inaction should not be construed as a determination that a violation has not occurred.

1 a claim for relief under the Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices Act, (iii) Count I of the Complaint fails
 2 to state a claim for relief under the law of any other state other than Nevada, (iv) Count II of the 3 Complaint must be dismissed for failure to plead fraud with particularity against Menu Foods, and (v)
 4 Count III of the Complaint fails to state a cause of action for unjust enrichment.

5 A. The Applicable Pleading Standard

6 In considering a motion to dismiss, the court accepts the plaintiff's allegations as true and 7 construes them in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. No. 84 Employer-Teamster Joint Council
 8 Pension Trust Fund v. Am. West Holding Corp., 320 F.3d 920, 931 (9th Cir. 2003); Simpson v. AOL
 9 Time Warner, Inc., 452 F.3d 1040, 1046 (9th Cir. 2006); Adams v. Johnson, 355 F.3d 1179, 1183 (9th 10 Cir. 2004). The sufficiency of the complaint must be determined considering the allegations in their 11 entirety and viewing all facts in the complaint as a whole. Id. There is a strong presumption against 12 dismissing an action for failure to state a claim. See Gilligan v. Jamco Dev. Corp., 108 F.3d 246, 249
 13 (9th Cir. 1997). As such, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim should be denied unless it 14 "appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff cannot prove any set of facts that would entitle him or her to 15 relief." Nursing Home Pension Fund, Local 144 v. Oracle Corp., 380 F.3d 1226, 1229 (9th Cir.
 16 2004); Williamson v. Gen. Dynamics Corp., 208 F.3d 1144, 1156 (9th Cir. 2000). As a result, under 17 settled Ninth Circuit precedent, a Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal is only proper in extraordinary cases.
 18 United States v. Redwood City*, 640 F.2d 963, 966 (9th Cir. 1981).

19 Further, under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(e), a party may plead claims in the alternative,
 20 and therefore, a party may alternatively state claims both for legal and equitable relief. As set forth
 21 in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(e)(2):

22 A party may set forth two or more statements of a claim or defense alternately or 23 hypothetically, either in one count or defense or in separate counts or defenses. When 24 two or more statements are made in the alternative and one of them if made 25 independently would be sufficient, the pleading is not made insufficient by the insufficiency of one or more of the alternative statements. A party may also state as many separate claims or defenses as the party has regardless of consistency and whether based on legal, equitable, or maritime grounds.

26 Thus, although a plaintiff may not recover on both theories, "a plaintiff may claim these remedies as 27 alternatives" E.H. Boly & Son, Inc. v. Schneider, 525 F.2d 20, 23 (1975); see also Hubbard Business 28 Plaza v. Lincoln Liberty Life Ins. Co., 596 F.Supp. 344, 347 (D. Nev. 1984) ("It is legally proper for

1 a pleading to set forth inconsistent theories as bases for the relief sought.”)

2 Finally, as a practical matter, leave to amend is almost always granted by the Court. Fed. R.
 3 Civ. P. § 15(a) expressly states that leave to amend “shall be freely given when justice so requires.”
 4 As a result, where the complaint might state a claim, leave to amend must be granted. Allen v. Beverly
 5 Hills, 911 F.2d 367, 373 (9th Cir. 1990); Doe v. United States, 58 F.3d 494, 497 (9th Cir. 1995); Silva
 6 v. Bieluch, 351 F.3d 1045, 1048 (11th Cir. 2003).

7 B. Plaintiff's Claims Are Legally Sufficient

8 1. Plaintiff's Claim For Violations of Nevada Consumer Fraud Laws Is 9 Legally Sufficient

10 The Complaint alleges a scheme by Defendants whereby certain products were fraudulently
 11 and unlawfully mislabeled as “Made in the USA,” when in fact Defendants knew that certain 12 important components of the product were imported from and manufactured in China, which precludes
 13 the use of the “Made in USA” designation. See e.g. Colgan v. Leatherman Tool Group, Inc., 135 Cal.
 14 App. 4th 663, 682 (2006). Plaintiff alleges that such a scheme violates the “Nevada consumer fraud 15 laws, particularly NRS Sections 41.600 and 598.0915.” (Complaint at ¶27). These statutes provide 16 victimized consumers, like the Plaintiff, with a private right of action.⁵

17 Further, there can be no dispute that the conduct alleged in the Complaint violates N.R.S.
 18 Section 598.0915 which provides, in relevant part, as follows:

19 A person engages in a ‘deceptive trade practice’ if, in the course of his business 20 or occupation, he:

21 4. Uses deceptive representations or designations of geographic origin in 22 connection with goods or services for sale or lease.

23 N.R.S. § 598.0915.

24 In this case, the Defendants’ false representation and designation of the products as “Made in 25 the USA”, when in fact, the contents of the product were not “all or virtually all” “Made in the USA”

26 ⁵ Nevada Revised Statute Chapter 598 “generally provides for a public cause of action for deceptive 27 trade practices.” Nev. Power Co. v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court of Nev., 120 Nev. 948, 102 P.3d 578, 28 583 n.7 (Nev. 2004). Nevada Revised Statute § 41.600 also provides that a victim of “consumer fraud” may assert a private cause of action. Id. Consumer fraud includes “[a] deceptive trade practice as defined in NRS 598.0915 to 598.0925, inclusive.” Id. (quoting Nev. Rev. Stat. 41.600(2)(d)).

1 plainly violates the express prohibition on such conduct. 62 Fed. Reg. 63756, 63768 (Dec. 2, 1997).

2 As held by one Court in California ruling on this same issue:

3 A reasonable consumer of Leatherman's products with the "Made in U.S.A."
4 representation would not expect such foreign manufacturing. (See Fed. Trade
5 Com., Enforcement Policy Statement on United States Origin Claims (Enforcement Policy) 62 Fed. Reg. 63756, 63768 (Dec. 2, 1997) ["consumers are 6 likely to understand an unqualified U.S. origin claim to mean that the advertised 7 product is 'all or virtually all' made in the United States"].) No reasonable trier of fact could conclude otherwise. (Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal.4th 826, 856 [107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].) Thus, the "Made in U.S.A." representations were deceptive as a matter of law.

8 Colgan v. Letherman Tool Group, 135 Cal. App. 4th 663, 682-3 (2006).⁶

9 Menu Foods, however, objects to Plaintiff's reference to federal law regarding the issue of 10 what is "Made in the USA." Such an argument is specious as the Complaint referred to federal law, 11 not to create a right of action, but rather to determine whether a product can be truthfully 12 labelled "Made in the USA." Nevada law then confers a private right of action for products which are 13 improperly designated.⁷

14 The reference to federal law in the Complaint, and in particular, the rules established by the 15 Federal Trade Commission and in 62 Fed. Reg. 63756, was to allege the applicable standard for when 16 a product can be called "Made in USA." The product must be "all or virtually all" made in the 17 U.S. Under this standard, "All or virtually all" means that "all significant parts and processing 18 that go into the product must be of U.S. origin. That is, the product should contain no — or 19 negligible — foreign content." Here, Defendant callously admits that the label was a lie because the 20 key manufactured component of Wheat Gluten was wholly Made in China, but argues that the 21 designation was not deceptive because the product was bagged in the United States. Bagging a product
22 in the United States, when the product is composed of foreign manufactured components or materials,
23 does not equal "Made in the USA". 62 Fed. Reg. at 63769-70. In light of this admission that a 24 significant component was manufactured in China, Defendant's unsupported argument that the "Made 25 in USA" designation on their product was legal and not deceptive is incorrect. 62 Fed. Reg. at 63768

26
27 ⁶ The Court in Colgan expressly referred to the FTC standard to determine whether the designation of "Made in USA" was deceptive.

28 ⁷ Nevada's attorney general follows this federal standard. 62 FR at 63758, n8.

1 and 63764. Nevertheless, this is a factual question for trial, not a Rule 12 motion.

2 Thus, Plaintiff's citation to the federal standard to determine whether Defendants' conduct is 3 a deceptive trade practice with respect to the designation of a geographic origin was entirely proper.
 4 The citation to federal authority in the Complaint was not intended, nor did it, invoke federal 5 law as a private right of action. Plaintiff's private right of action is based upon N.R.S. Sections
 6 41.600 and 598.0915. Menu Food's argument on this point is misplaced as the federal standard
 7 will be the test to determine when the products could lawfully be designated as "Made in the 8 USA" under N.R.S. Section 598.0915.

9 2. Plaintiff's Claim for Unjust Enrichment Is Also Legally Sufficient

10 Menu Foods incorrectly asserts that Plaintiff's claim for unjust enrichment fails because 11 Defendant did not retain a benefit unjustly conferred..

12 In Nevada, unjust enrichment is "the unjust retention of a benefit to the loss of another. . . ." Coury v. Robison, 115 Nev. 84, 976 P.2d 518, 521 (Nev. 1999) (quoting Nev. Indus. Dev. v. Benedetti, 103 Nev. 360, 741 P.2d 802, 804 n.2 (Nev. 1987)). A benefit "denotes any form of advantage." Restatement of Restitution § 1 cmt. b (1937); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 886B cmt. c (1979). In this case, the Complaint sufficiently alleges the elements of a claim for unjust enrichment. Stewart Title of Nevada v. Haenisch, 2006 U.S. Dist. Lexis 90513, at *19 (D. Nev. 2006). Unjust enrichment applies here because "money paid through misapprehension of facts belongs, in equity and good conscience, to the person who paid it." Nevada Indus. Dev. v. Benedetti, 103 Nev. 360, 363, fn.2 (1987).

21 Menu Foods claims that the voluntary recall nullifies any unjust enrichment claim.
 22 Specifically, the recall notice issued by Defendants with regard to certain contaminated lots offered 23 a refund of "all voluntarily recalled products." Based on this evidence, Menu Foods argues that the 24 Court should factually find that Menu Foods did not retain any "benefit." This argument is fatally
 25 flawed for multiple reasons. The recall of specific product codes of products due to contamination
 26 is not coextensive with the claim now asserted as to all "Ol' Roy" pet food products sold before March 27 16, 2007. The recall notice only offered refunds for certain contaminated lots and is in no way
 28 equivalent to the recovery sought in this case for all mislabeled products. The Class in this case

1 is much broader and substantively different from those affected by the recall notice. Moreover, the 2 claim alleged here is for all mislabeled "Ol' Roy" products sold during the Class period, not just for 3 a specific lot that was contaminated. Plaintiff and the Class Members bought far more pet food that 4 had been fraudulently mislabeled by Defendants than the narrow subset of the lot of contaminated pet 5 food subject to the recall.

6 This argument also fails as a procedurally flawed dispute as to the merits of Plaintiff's factual
 7 allegations (Complaint at ¶46 and ¶47), which cannot be resolved through a motion to dismiss. This 8 argument attacks the factual allegations of the complaint which must for purposes of the Motion to 9 Dismiss be viewed as true.

10 As the Complaint plainly alleges at paragraphs 46 and 47:

11 Defendants have benefitted and been enriched by the above-alleged conduct.
 12 Defendants sold the Ol' Roy brand pet food products with the false designation that the 13 Ol' Roy brand pet food products were "Made in USA" and thereby unjustly reaped
 14 benefits and profits from consumers and the Class as a result of these representations.
 15 Defendants received and continues to receive sale benefits and profits at the expense
 16 of Plaintiff and the Class using such deceptive representation and designations.
 17 (Complaint at ¶ 46).

18 Defendants used the aforementioned representations to induce Plaintiff and the other 19 members of the Class to purchase the Ol' Roy brand pet food products. Accordingly, 20 Defendants received benefits which they have unjustly retained at the expense of 21 Plaintiff and the Class members. Defendants have knowledge of this benefit, 22 voluntarily accepted such benefit, and retained the benefit.
 23 (Complaint at ¶ 47).

3. Plaintiff can Legally Plead the Violation of the Consumer Protection Laws of Defendants' Home States as Well as Nevada To Establish the Absence of any True Conflict of Law and the Manageability of the Nationwide Class

29 After careful analysis of the state consumer protection laws, Plaintiff determined that there 30 is no true conflict of laws between the various states with respect to Defendants' liability for 31 fraudulently mislabeling and selling the products as "Made in the USA." As a result, Nevada law can 32 properly be applied to the claims of the absent class members.

33 Nevertheless, anticipating Defendants' argument that alleged difference in the laws of the 34 various fifty states could arguably present manageability concerns in a nationwide action, Plaintiff

1 performed a detailed analysis of the laws of the various states to show that there is no conflict of state
 2 laws on this issue and therefore no manageability problem. All states follow federal law on this
 3 issue. Moreover, Plaintiff's complaint specifically alleged how the domicile state law for each
 4 defendant was identical to Nevada, and therefore presents no conflict of law issue:

5 The laws of every other state are identical to and/or substantively similar to 6 Nevada consumer fraud laws in that federal law and the laws of every state 7 prohibit the use of deceptive representations regarding the geographic origin of 8 products, and every state similarly authorizes an action by consumers for such 9 conduct. In addition, the laws of the state of Delaware, and in particular 6 Del. C. §
 10 2532(a)(4) is identical to that of Nevada N.R.S. §598.0915.

11 (Complaint at ¶ 27).

12 This conduct violates Nevada law, and the law of every other state, including but 13 not limited to California (Cal. Civil Code §1770(a)(4)), Arkansas (Ark. Stat. Ann.
 14 §4-88-107(a)(1)), Alabama (Code of Ala. §8-19-5(4)), and Delaware (6 Del. C.
 15 §2532), all of which laws are identical in prohibiting deceptive representations or 16 designations of geographic origin in the marketing and sales of goods.

17 (Complaint at ¶ 30).

18 As a result, Plaintiff further alleged:

19 To the extent that the Nevada Consumer Fraud Act may be found not to protect the 20 residents of other states, the consumer fraud acts of the Defendants' forum state could 21 be applied to all members of the Class.

22 (Complaint at ¶ 35).

23 In the event this Court concludes at some later stage of proceedings that Nevada law does not 24 apply to the claims of out-of-state consumers, the case will remain manageable because the law of 25 the Defendants' forum state can be applied to the claims of all of the absent class members. For 26 example, Plaintiff's alleges that all of the fraudulently labeled products were distributed from Arkansas
 27 and purchased by consumers from an Arkansas company (Wal-Mart). As a result, Arkansas law could 28 be found to have a nexus to all of the claims in this case. The same is true with respect to California (Del Monte), Alabama (Sunshine Mills), Nevada (Chemnutra), and Delaware (Wal-Mart, Menu Foods, Sunshine Mills, Del Monte and Chemnutra). All these states follow the federal standard for labeling products as "Made in the U.S.A." and find mislabeling actionable by private citizens as a deceptive trade practice.

29 In Philip Petroleum v. Shutts, 472 U.S. 797 (1985), the United States Supreme Court held that

1 a state court may constitutionally exercise jurisdiction over the claims of nonresident plaintiffs and
 2 defendants in a nationwide class action case and apply the law of the forum state if 1) the named 3 plaintiff adequately represents the absent class members' interests; 2) the members of the class are 4 given adequate notice and the opportunity to opt out; and 3) the forum state has "a significant contact
 5 or significant aggregation of contacts, creating state interests, such that choice of law is neither 6 arbitrary nor fundamentally unfair." 472 U.S. at 811-822.⁸ Here, Nevada and the states in which 7 Defendants are headquartered all have a significant aggregation of contacts such that 8 application of their law in this action would be "neither arbitrary nor fundamentally unfair"
 9 under Shutts.

10 Moreover, choice of law analysis for a nationwide class action and a determination of its 11 potential impact on the manageability of a class action are premature at the pleadings stage. Rios v.
 12 State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 469 F. Supp. 2d 727, 742 (D. Iowa 2007) (On a motion for judgement 13 on the pleadings "it is premature to determine the manageability of the proposed class action 14 lawsuit given that it is unclear which, and how many, varying state laws will be implicated.").
 15 In fact many courts have held that choice of law issues are even premature at the class certification 16 stage. Singer v. AT&T Corp., 185 F.R.D. 681, 691 (S. D. Fla. 1998) ("It is well-established that 17 consideration of choice of law issues at the class certification stage is generally premature"); Kirschner
 18 Medical Corp. Sec. Litig., 139 F.R.D. 74, 84 (D. Md. 1991); In re Lilco Sec. Litig., 111 F.R.D. 663, 19 670-71 (E.D.N.Y. 1986); Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 164 F.R.D. 391, 399 (D.N.J. 1996).

20

21 4. Fraud Was Pled With Particularity Under the Standards Set in
Nev. R. Civ. P. 9(b)

22 Under Nev. R. Civ. P. 9(b) and Fed. R. Civ. P. 9, fraud must be pled with particularity. This 23 means the complaint must be specific regarding the time and place of the fraudulent activity, the 25 ⁸ After review of the applicable state laws, the trial court, on remand, held that there was no conflict 26 of laws between Kansas, the forum state, and other state laws implicated in the case. On appeal, the 27 Kansas Supreme Court reviewed the laws of each of the eleven states involved in the case to 28 determine the appropriate interest rate at issue. Shutts v. Phillips Petroleum Corp., 240 Kan. 764, 732

 P.2d 1286, 1292-1314 (Kan. 1987). Here also, there is no true conflict between the law of the forum state, in this case Nevada, and the other state laws implicated in this case.

1 identity of the parties involved, and the nature of the fraud.⁹ Plaintiff's complaint satisfies Nevada
 2 law by specifically addressing each area of "particularity" that Rule 9(b) requires. The identity of the 3 parties involved in the fraud is clearly described in the "Who" section of the Complaint which reads,
 4 "The Defendants each participated in the labeling..." (Complaint at ¶ 39) There is no doubt that Menu
 5 Foods is included within this group of Defendants. The "When" and "Where" sections of the 6 Complaint satisfy the time and place requirements of Rule 9(b) by stating "Ol Roy" brand pet food
 7 deceptively misrepresented the country of origin "at all times prior to March 16, 2007" and the fraud
 8 was visibly present "on the label" itself. (Complaint at ¶ 39) In addition, the paragraph entitled 9 "Nature of Fraud" describes how Defendants intentionally mislabeled the products in order to fool the 10 consumer into thinking they were made in the United States and composed of American ingredients, 11 thus qualifying for the "MADE IN USA" designation.

12 Every Defendant knew the key wheat gluten component of the product originated from and was 13 manufactured in China. In fact, every product Chemnutra sells is imported from China. Every 14 Defendant knew that wheat gluten is the major manufactured component in a wet-style pet food
 15 containing gravy. Therefore, there can be no doubt that all Defendants knew that a major ingredient 16 in "Ol Roy" pet food did not originate from the United States. Thus, the designation of "MADE IN 17 USA" was not available as a marketing tool or as an indicator of country of origin. 62 FR 63768-70.
 18 The fact that Defendants did in fact use the label "MADE IN USA" is a clear indication of fraud.

19 The Complaint, therefore, satisfies Rule 9(b) by stating with particularity the nature of the 20 fraud, which is virtually self-evident, the parties involved, and the time frame in which the fraud 21 occurred. Any further specificity will clearly require further investigation and discovery. These 22 allegations are legally sufficient as stated by the Court in George v. Morton, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
 23 15980:

24 So long as the complaint sufficiently describes the circumstances of the alleged fraud 25 so that the defendant is able adequately to respond, the complaint meets the particularity requirement of Rule 9(b).

26 George v. Morton, supra, at *26, citing Cooper v. Pickett, 137 F.3d 616, 627 (9th Cir. 1997).

28 ⁹ Rocker v. KPMG 148 P. 3d 703, 704 (2006), 122 Nev. Adv. Rep. 101

1 5. Even if Fraud Was Not Pled With Sufficient Particularity as to Each
 2 Defendant, Nevada Has Adopted The Relaxed Pleading Requirements the 3 Federal Courts Utilize, Where, as Here, the Facts Necessary To Plead
 4 Fraud with Particularity Are Within The Defendants' Knowledge or 5 Possession.

6 In some cases, a strong inference of fraud is enough to satisfy the standards of Rule 9 (b) when 7 the specific facts of the fraudulent activity are in the Defendant's possession.¹⁰ In such cases, if the 8 Plaintiff pleads particular facts giving rise to a strong inference of fraud, the Plaintiff should have an 9 opportunity to conduct discovery and amend the complaint later to include the particular facts¹¹.

10 Here, any more specificity than has already been pled in the complaint is not readily 11 unavailable without further investigation and discovery. As it stands, the inference of fraud is clear.
 12 The Defendants knew they were labeling "Ol Roy" brand pet food with the "MADE IN USA"
 13 designation with knowledge that at least one key component came from China. It was no accident that 14 Defendants reaped the benefits of this oversight on many levels. First, they saved money by 15 purchasing a key ingredient from a country half way around the world not known for their high 16 standards with regard to food quality. Next, Defendants mislabeled the final product "MADE IN 17 USA" which attracted buyers who believe that American food quality standards are the best in the 18 world. Lastly, there were no customers who decided not to buy "Ol Roy" pet food because it was 19 made with Chinese ingredients because there was no way for the American consumer to know this fact.
 20 Therefore, it is clear that Defendants knew they mislabeled "Ol Roy" brand pet food and reaped a 21 great benefit from this intentional act.

22 In Rocker v. KPMG, the Nevada Supreme Court recently held that similar allegations
 23 sufficiently pled a claim for fraud under Nevada law:

24 [T]he consumers understandably were not more specific because a great deal of 25 the information in this case was in the hands of KPMG and the other defendants.
 26 Therefore, the consumers were unable to make allegations in their complaint with 27 greater specificity in order to comply with the requirements of NRCP 9(b) for fraud
 28 complaints. This difficulty places the consumers in a classic catch-22-they are required
 29 to file a complaint to enable them to conduct discovery to ascertain the relevant 30 information they need, but they cannot file a complaint with sufficient particularity 31 because they do not know the information contained in KPMG's documents. Many

27 ¹⁰ Rocker v. KPMG 148 P. 3d 703, 704 (2006), 122 Nev. Adv. Rep. 101

28 ¹¹ Id. at 704.

courts have addressed similar situations and recognize an exception to the particularized pleading requirements.

Rocker, 148 P. 3d at 708.

In that situation, the plaintiff may make an allegation on information and belief but "must state the factual basis for the belief." When applying this relaxed standard, the federal courts require the plaintiff to allege more than suspicious circumstances. Where pleading is permitted on information and belief, a complaint must adduce specific facts supporting a strong inference of fraud or it will not satisfy even a relaxed pleading standard.

Rocker, 148 P. 3d at 708-9.

This exception strikes a reasonable balance between NRCP 9(b)'s stringent requirements for pleading fraud and a plaintiff's inability to allege the full factual basis concerning fraud because information and documents are solely in the defendant's possession and cannot be secured without formal, legal discovery. Therefore, we adopt this relaxed standard in situations where the facts necessary for pleading with particularity are peculiarly within the defendant's knowledge or are readily obtainable by him.

Rocker, 148 P. 3d at 709.

Here, as in Rocker, the paper trail and/or other facts evidencing this fraud and each Defendant's role is in the exclusive control of the Defendants. The Complaint states as much as it reads, "Defendants possess superior knowledge of the true facts, including knowledge that certain components were imported under a "Made in China" designation..." (Complaint at ¶10). The press release information disclosed by the Defendants does not disclose how each Defendant specifically participated in the fraudulent designation of the product as "Made in USA." Therefore, Plaintiffs should be allowed to use the discovery process to uncover more details of fraud in order to later amend the Complaint should the court decide that the particularity of Rule 9(b) has not been satisfied.

V. CONCLUSION

For all of the reasons discussed herein, Plaintiff respectfully submits that Menu Food's motion should be denied.
